

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

for

NIGHTLIGHT FOUNDATION,

Bangkok, Thailand

Annie Dieselberg, CEO and Founder. Annie grew up as a “Third Culture Kid,” living in Congo, Belgium, Thailand, and India, and developing a passion against injustice. In 1994, Annie and her family were sent by International Ministries to Bangkok to address the issues of the urban poor. In 2000, Annie began working with women in prostitution, and in 2005, Annie began NightLight to provide intervention and holistic restoration to women ready to escape. Annie has a passion to see women and children freed from prostitution and trafficking, to see their lives transformed, and to see the global church and community work together to free, heal, and restore all who have been broken and wounded through the sex trade. Annie’s story has been featured in the book, Not For Sale, by David Batstone, the documentary, Furious Love, by Darren Wilson, and the National Geographic documentary 21st Century Sex Slaves.

Panompon Utaisri, Director of NightLight Foundation. Panompon is co-founder and Director of NightLight Foundation, and serves on the board of NightLight Design Co. Ltd. Panompon earned a degree in Theology in 1993 from Bangkok Bible Seminary, and a Masters of Christian Ministry in Administration in 2011. Before co-founding NightLight, Panompon worked as Director of a Compassion Project at Charoen Baptist Church for 11 years, overseeing 150 children in the surrounding slum communities. Pon has excellent leadership skills and is a visionary leader, motivator, and achiever. Panompon is married with three children.

Janejinda Pawadee (Jane). Jane became an activist during her time in university, and has been involved in working with women, children, and related issues since she graduated in 1986. Jane has served in various capacities with churches and NGOs, serving as Project Coordinator at Foundation for Children, Director of Human Rights Desk at the Church of Christ in Thailand (CCT), Social Worker at International Justice Mission (IJM), Consultant at Christian Conference of Asia (CCA), and recently, Social Worker at Nvader. In her recent role with Nvader, Jane worked specifically on human trafficking and sexual abuse issues. Jane see herself as an advocate and voice of the voiceless.

Kuljira Leelapiyawat. Kuljira holds a bachelor’s degree in nursing and master’s degree in ministry. After spending over 10 years in nursing, Kuljira served in several ministry and pastoral roles. Currently, Kuljira serves as a Bible teacher at Siam Youth Center Church and owns her own business.

Debbie Klongtruadroke Scott. Debbie has shared her talents as a model, singer, and TV hostess in many different countries around the world. During her tenure as hostess on CBN Siam's program "Jak Jai Tueng Jai (From Heart to Heart)" in Thailand, Debbie met Annie at a Christmas event and fell in love with what NightLight was doing. Since that time, Debbie has spoken at various NightLight functions in Thailand, and has been a part of NightLight's prevention work in the Isaan province. Debbie and her husband pastor a church in Bangkok, Newsong Bangkok Church.

Prayoon Limahutaseranee. Now retired, Prayoon formerly served 30 years as an associate senior pastor at a local church in Bangkok. Prayoon has a heart of compassion and cares deeply about the injustice he sees on the streets of Bangkok and across Thailand. Prayoon is still in high demand to preach all over Thailand, and has been on the board of NightLight Foundation since its beginning. He is a highly valued member of our board.

Sureeporn Sripratumrak. Sureeporn owns a travel agency and serves in leadership at a local church in Bangkok. She is the newest addition to NightLight Foundation's board, joining us in 2017. Sureeporn has a servant's heart and brings a wealth of business and leadership skills that she has gained over the years. Sureeporn is married with 2 sons. She and her husband also own a retreat center that they have graciously allowed NightLight to use over the years.
